

In-Training

General Description

Physicians currently enrolled in an approved radiology or related residency program or a post-residency fellowship program and pre- or post-doctoral fellows with interest in Advanced Body Imaging are eligible for In-Training Membership. Medical students with an interest in Advanced Body Imaging also are eligible for In Training Membership. The Board of Directors shall extend In-Training-Members special consideration in the matter of dues and fees. In-Training Members are eligible to submit abstracts to the Research and Science Committee as well as attend the Scientific Session.

Procedures for Admission

Applicants must submit an Application for In-Training Membership, which shall include a verification of enrollment from the program director of an approved radiology residency program. An In-Training Member who has completed an approved radiology or related residency program or research program will be offered In-Training Membership in the society subject to the requirements for admission to Membership set forth in Section 2.04.2 of the Bylaws.